

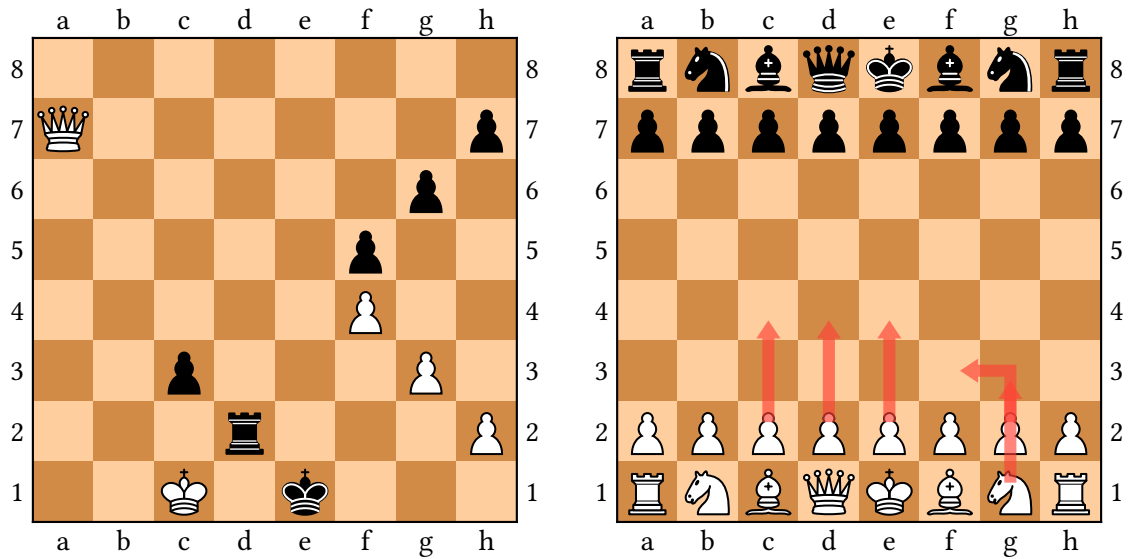

Figure 1: The position on the left shows the last position of a game by the two former world champions Garry Kasparov and Veselin Topalov. Black resigns in this completely lost position without waiting for a checkmate. The position on the right shows different first moves played by masters, showing that there is more than one viable move per position.